Your Career Matters: Networking Myths Debunked

Since roughly 85 percent of jobs are obtained through personal contacts, more time should be spent on crafting the core messages you'd like to send to your network, while building and maintaining authentic relationships. If you've convinced yourself that networking isn't for you, maybe it's because you feel uncomfortable meeting new people or it's not natural for you. That's not a problem: we've pulled together 3 networking myths that often limit career growth, and debunk common misconceptions to help you benefit the most from this powerful technique..
