Stony Brook History – 1970's

1970

The first four Health Sciences Center (HSC) Schools open: Allied Health Professionals, Social Welfare, Nursing, and Basic Sciences begin classes in temporary facilities.

Dr. Tobias Owen joins the Earth and Space Sciences faculty. Dr. Tobias was a member of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration space mission imaging science teams for flights to Mars, Jupiter and Saturn.

The Urban and Policies program is established.
First Stony Brook People is published.

The Stony Brook Union opens after long construction delays.

JUNE 2 AND JUNE 3, 2023

1970

Plans progress for design of physical structures. Recommendations call for a 1.3 million square-foot space complex to include space for the five schools, library, lecture halls and auditoriums, administration offices, physical plant, communications and a 500-bed hospital.

The University Construction Fund selects architect Bertrand Goldberg. The project is split into construction phases: first, HSC; second, University Hospital; third, Basic Sciences Tower. Projected cost for each phase, exclusive of equipment, is $60-80 million. In April, construction begins on the Health Sciences Center.

Construction on the hospital stalls due to skepticism for the need and financial losses incurred by hospitals connected with SUNY Downstate and Upstate. September [HSC]: A total of 11 temporary buildings are ready for occupancy on South Campus, on an undeveloped area south of the HSC campus on the west side of Nicolls Road to house students for the five schools of the Health Sciences Center. [HSC]: Faculty and staff of 64 welcome a total of 43 students to first classes

1971

The fifth of six HSC Schools opens: the School of Medicine.

The Frank Melville Jr. Memorial Library, named in honor of Ward Melville's father, opens after a major expansion project.

On September 15, students hold an Attica rally.

The Empire State College is founded to offer "Alternative instruction directed toward serving adults through individual and independent study."

The last of the six HSC Schools opens: the School of Dental Medicine opens with 24 students chosen from 1600 applicants.

1972 - Leah Holland ('76), the first woman on a SUNY Stony Brook swimming team, becomes the first woman to win a medal in the Metropolitan Intercollegiate Swimming Association Championships.

The State Legislature approves $9,947,000 for Phase I for the Fine Arts Center, estimated to cost $15 million.

REUNION WEEKEND 2023

JUNE 2 AND JUNE 3, 2023

The Stony Brook Playhouse first opens at the Slavic Cultural Center in Port Jefferson, later moving its summer schedules to the Fine Arts Center in 1976. The Institute of Advanced Studies of World Religions moves to the Library. C.T. Shen, chairperson of the board of the American Steamship Company, founded it in 1970.

Students march to the Smithaven Mall and join the National Strike protesting the bombing of Hanoi. On September 7, students hold a demonstration against the Department of Defense.

[HSC]: J. Howard Oaks is appointed second Vice President for the Health Sciences. [HSC]: Dr. Marvin Kushner, founding director of the Department of Pathology, is appointed the Dean of Medicine. [HSC]: Edmund Pellegrino accepts position as chancellor of the University of Tennessee at Memphis.

Ground is broken for hospital construction.

REUNION WEEKEND 2023

JUNE 2 AND JUNE 3, 2023

Bonnie Astor '73

BS, Nursing

Student Activities: Statesman

Alumni Affiliation: Former School of Nursing Alumni Board

Reunion Class Notes: Master's in Community Health Nursing at Rutgers University in 1975. Retired early from East Stroudsburg University Nursing faculty. Had a Sabbatical leave in southern India to develop a rural hospital staff and increase an active outpatient department. Continued community oriented nursing in Southern California and Seattle areas. Recently transitioned my career focus to education and art. Currently happiest when creating artwork for non-profit organizations whose goals reflect my own, specifically women's issues, health care and peace. Artworks are nationally known, and patrons are international. Home life is active with adult sons involved in engineering careers; husband teaching biology and earning a great reputation for cooking classes with ethnic fusion.

BA, Music

Student Clubs/Activities: Music

Reunion Class Notes: I attended the junior year abroad program in Israel, and after graduating, returned to Israel where I lived for nine more years studying, playing in professional orchestras and a string quartet, and teaching cello. I got married there to my husband, whom I had met at and been together with since Juilliard Pre-College. We moved to Connecticut when our son was two years old so that my husband could attend graduate school at Yale. Our daughter was born a year later. We now have two grandchildren from our daughter, a girl and a boy. I continue to play cello professionally.

Fondest Stony Brook Memories: I think that my fondest memory was walking through the woods with my cello on a golf cart in order to get to the model homes which served as the music department during my freshman year.

High School: West Hempstead High School

A Match Made in Light Engineering

Jean D'Onofrio '75 and Lou D'Onofrio '73

<https://news.stonybrook.edu/alumni/a-match-made-in-light-engineering-a-stony-brook-love-story/>

When freshman Jean Giampietro '75 nervously approached a group of older students in the Light Engineering building, she had no idea that she would find much more than just a new study spot.

In that group of students was Lou D'Onofrio '73, an Engineering student who struck up a conversation with her. The next week, their paths crossed multiple times, until Lou finally asked her out. The date almost didn't happen: in her excitement, Jean had given an incorrect phone number, and once that hurdle had been overcome, her mother had to be sure that Jean wasn't going out with her cousin's son (who was also studying engineering at Stony Brook).

The date did happen, though, and as their relationship blossomed the two commuter students learned that they had many similarities. They were both born in Kew Gardens Hospital, were both the firstborn of three children to Italian-American parents, and even both played the accordion. They would also both become part of a Legacy Family, with siblings who went on to graduate from Stony Brook. Shortly after Jean's graduation from the physical therapy program, and numerous bowling games later, they married.
